She Leads the Way

In the nearly year and a half since Virginia L. Lester took office as President of Mary Baldwin College there has been a detectable change in the atmosphere of the campus. With a positive new attitude, the entire college community can be described as moving rapidly . . . progressing . . . and experimenting. She has been the pacesetter, but each constituency of the college—trustees, faculty, administration, staff, alumnae, parents and friends—has matched her stride. This issue takes a look at Mary Baldwin—in action!

Financial Stability—The Primary Goal

During Dr. Lester's first few months she evaluated Mary Baldwin's strengths and prepared realistically for the future by setting goals for the forthcoming year. The most acute problems identified were the lack of a substantial amount of permanent endowment and an accumulating deficit. Mary Baldwin still ranks below all but one of her sister colleges in the amount of its endowment. This income is vital in today's unpredictable economy. Without enough endowment income, inflation has put intensive demands upon the operating budget and the seventies have seen a growing deficit accumulation. Strict control over existing resources was initiated immediately by Dr. Lester.

With the help of a $60,000 grant from Coopers and Lybrand the college has engaged in a 12-month cost-effectiveness study to improve the efficiency of every aspect of its operation. The aim is to preserve quality of programs while fighting inflation with a renewed determination to live within the college's means. In June

Dr. Dane J. Cox came to Mary Baldwin to fill the position of treasurer and business manager. He has been able to serve as a valuable source of information and financial advice to the President in reaching these ends.

Recruitment Efforts Expanded

Knowing that full enrollment is tantamount to survival of a private educational institution, Dr. Lester turned her attention to the recruitment of qualified students for Mary Baldwin. With a declining birthrate nationwide and increased competition from the public sector, admissions techniques have changed from selection to marketing. An admissions consulting firm was engaged to help the college sharpen its skills and direct efforts in the most productive areas.

The pace has quickened considerably with new plans which demand constant action. The Admissions suite of offices has expanded to include the whole first floor of the Administration Building and it is hoped that redecoration in the near future will further reflect the vitality of the exciting new publications created by the Admissions Office in conjunction with the Office of Information Services.

A new program aimed at enhancing recruitment efforts and attracting the type of student Mary Baldwin demands is the Bailey Scholarship Program. Presented to the Board of Trustees by Dr. Lester last June and adopted soon after, the program offers fifty $1,000 scholarships to incoming freshmen beginning in the fall of 1978. The scholarships seek to honor academic excellence and are not based on financial need. Alumnae, parents, and friends are urged to inform students in their areas of these new awards.

Six professionals in the Admissions Office are continually traveling on behalf of the college, journeying to 24 states throughout the fall and winter, spending most of the recruiting season on the road. But, they cannot do the job alone. They need the cooperation of dedicated alumnae and friends throughout the country. During the summer months 68 more alumnae were recruited to expand the college's network of Admissions Aides. This group of alumnae pacesetters, now numbering 141, are actively engaged in the admissions' effort by spreading the "good word" about MBC in their own localities. They telephone prospective students, give parties for accepted students, distribute literature, and promote the college in any way possible in their communities.

A New Constituency

Mary Baldwin has always existed to serve the educational needs of young women in accordance with the demands of the times. Aware that 90% of women between the ages of 30 and 44 do not have college degrees, Dr. Lester encouraged the initiation of a new educational plan called the Adult Degree Program. It is a four-year liberal arts program, designed to meet the needs of mature women—and even men—who seek an alternative method of obtaining a college degree. The program is non-traditional, non-residential, and individualized in order that a student may work independently at her own pace and at a location that best suits her study plan and life circumstances.

Directed by Ms. Dudley B. Luck, former assistant professor of education, the new program began enrolling students on August 26th. Orientation sessions enroll eight new students monthly and the waiting list extends through May, 1978. The fledgling program received a special lift this past summer when the college received word that its proposal for a federal grant from the Fund for the Improvement of Post-Secondary Education was accepted. Thanks to Dr. Lester who burned the midnight oil for many nights writing the proposal, the grant awarded $138,000 over a three-year period.

Included in this sum are monies to staff a Women's Center to provide all students a supportive environment for decision making and problem solving, needed when a student begins her academic work, continues her four-year academic career, and looks for satisfactory job placement. The Women's Center will coordinate all career related services under the direction of the Dean of Students' Office. Ms. Dorothy Geare, formerly director of career placement and planning at Fairfax Community College in Virginia, began as director of the Center January 2, 1978.

Another academic area adding a new constituency is the expanded program of continuing education. This fall 21 evening courses were offered, running the gamut from Modern History to Auto Mechanics. Mary Baldwin is enabling an increasing number of adults to work toward a degree or to gain personal enrichment.

New Approaches to the Liberal Arts

Mary Baldwin has also embarked upon new methods to help each student in the regular degree program look to her own future. A total concept of "goal-oriented advising" is now utilizing the college's resources and skills so that every young woman attending Mary Baldwin will have guidance in making informed choices concerning her academic program and her life after college. The faculty is deeply involved in this process, and the Women's Center and the Counseling Center will provide the technical support needed.

New academic programs emphasize preparation for careers as a logical combination with the college's liberal arts curriculum. For instance, there is a new major offered in Arts Management which expands career opportunities to those whose interest lies in the arts. This fall Business Management was introduced as a major and next year one will be offered in Speech Communication which will also meet the requirements for teacher certification in speech.

The needs and interests of individual students are of primary importance within the college's academic life. Each must take a good deal of responsibility in shaping her own program. There is flexibility in selection, but of the 36 courses required for graduation, a minimum of nine must form a coherent concentration for a major. Traditional majors are offered in most subjects and independent majors may be designed with the help of the student's faculty advisor.

The 1977-78 school year offers a short term in May as an alternate for the former January term, a calendar change designed to save fuel costs after last winter's energy crisis. Intensive courses are offered on campus during this term, including one scheduled for May 1978 in conjunction with Washington and Lee University in which men and women students from the two colleges will be studying together at Mary Baldwin.

Many students opt during this term to work away from the campus. Externships in business, industry, government, and other institutions can be arranged for credit and valuable exposure to job situations. Perhaps you can arrange such an externship within your company, institution, or other place of business. You are urged to contact Dr. Donald D. Thompson, coordinator of professional training and experiential learning, to explore the possibilities of such a valuable service to the college.

The North Campus—Another Challenge

The acquisition of the Staunton Military Academy property has provided new opportunities to meet the diverse needs of Mary Baldwin's student body. The former superintendent's home has been renovated and attractively decorated to serve as the President's Home, bringing Dr. Lester within the physical bounds of the campus where she can be stopped to talk any day as she hurries to and from her office. A gift from the Atlanta Alumnae Chapter provided handsome wallpaper for the house, helping to create the warm surroundings in which Dr. Lester entertained students, parents, and friends of the college throughout the fall.

The old Mess Hall was easily transformed into a spacious social hall and is in constant use for student parties and campus events. Happily, the students' favorite music never disturbs their nearest neighbor, the President!

The rolling green fields of the North Campus have opened new areas for the physical education department. There is room for hockey, soccer, softball, and track. Hopes are strong for the early restoration of a three-hole golf course.

Dr. Lester loves an informal gathering and is an inveterate floor-sitter. Students express their thanks for her hospitality after a party at the President's Home.

Other buildings on the new property present a challenge to those entrusted with planning for the future. How does the college envision its space needs? A committee composed of faculty and staff is working in consultation with several architects who are making recommendations for long-term use of the property as best fits future requirements.

Additional Resources—A Major Priority

The New Dimensions Capital Campaign, begun in 1974, is now over half-way toward its increased goal of $10 million and last year received a renewed emphasis and resurgence of interest as Dr. Lester traveled to over 18 cities to meet alumnae and friends.

A fresh approach to the development program is being provided by Mr. William G. Wehner, who recently was appointed vice president for development. He comes to Mary Baldwin from Drew University where he served as the director of planned giving. Mr. Wehner expects to implement a second phase of the New Dimensions campaign, focus on grant proposals and approaches to foundations, and give new emphasis to the annual giving program.

Mrs. Betty Jean Stocker, who was associated with Texas Christian University for eleven years, has been appointed director of special projects. The new development personnel have moved to the Alumnae House to join Mrs. Virginia Munce, director of alumnae activities. This team will execute new annual giving plans for 1978. Assisting Mr. Wehner in the area of planned giving will be Dr. Frank Pancake, associate professor of political science.

A report of donors to Mary Baldwin College for the 1976-77 Fund year is listed in a special section of this issue. This listing is evidence that Mary Baldwin's friends are many. Such "pacesetters," whether alumnae, trustees, parents, associates of the library, or others, demonstrate confidence in the college's future and are loyal supporters of its programs. Increased endowment through the New Dimensions campaign and increased operating revenue through the Annual Giving Fund are important goals for the college. Such increases will keep Mary Baldwin on the move through the present and the future — meeting all the challenges of today and tomorrow. To attain these goals, the college needs you as an active, participating partner.

Dr. Lester Is Setting The Pace

Dr. Virginia Lester's vitality and enthusiasm have made her much in demand by friends and neighbors of the college, creating additional visibility for Mary Baldwin on a state and national basis.

Since coming to Mary Baldwin, Dr. Lester has been appointed to the Commission on Women in Higher Education and the boards of directors of Southern Bankshares and The Virginia Foundation of Independent Colleges.

A popular speaker, requests for her time have increased because of appearances as the keynote speaker for the Carnegie Corporation's Internship Program, the New York State Educational Department's Conference on Non-Traditional Studies, and the Virginia Business Women. She was a stimulating participant in the Charlottesville, Virginia, Focus Series on Mental Health in Women and has appeared on several Virginia TV "talk shows." Did you catch the Mary Baldwin story on "Good Morning America" in December, 1976?

In November Dr. Lester received the coveted Pioneer of the Year Award from Frankford High School in her home city of Philadelphia and has recently been chosen for inclusion in the 40th edition of Who's Who in America.

At the beginning of 1978 the President's calendar is already heavily committed, many of these dates requiring travel far from the campus. Virginia L. Lester is on the move, briefcase in hand, meeting the challenges of the times and exploring every possibility to keep Mary Baldwin College moving ahead at her own rapid pace. Join her in this exciting adventure.

What is next on the schedule? At her desk in the President's Office Dr. Lester studies her crowded calendar and comes up smiling and ready for the next appointment.

News of the Faculty

Elizabeth M. Hairfield, assistant professor of chemistry, was awarded a grant from the Virginia Academy of Science for her research "Mechanism of Epoxidation of Benzoquinones". She is also participating in the science division of the Duke Program for Continuing Education sponsored by the Lilly Endowment.

Charlotte Hogsett, associate professor of French, is writing a book on Germaine de Stael, an early nineteenth century French writer. The book will be using research done under a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities at Yale University during her sabbatical leave in 1976-77. A part of the book will appear in the spring edition of the journal, Studies in Romanticism.

Patricia H. Menk, professor of history, made an address to the annual meeting of the Southern Division of the National Paper Box Association at the Homestead in Hot Springs, Va. She also attended the Commission on Colleges of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools in Atlanta and the board meeting of the Virginia Foundation for the Humanities and Public Policy at Bryce's Mountain, Va.

Donald D. Thompson, professor of psychology, received a grant from HEW, Office of Human Development. The title of the grant is "Psychological Indicators of Effectiveness in the Treatment of Spinal Cord Injured Individuals". Dr. Thompson has also received memberships in the Science Education Division Advisory Committee of the National Science Foundation; the Office of Human Development under the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare; and the Advisory Commission for Research on Spinal Injury under the Rehabilitation Service Administration.

Learning is a State, Not an Age

It is said that the key to staying young is continuing to learn, but suppose one does not have a plan, a program, or a place to go about it? The new Adult Degree Program at Mary Baldwin College has provided all these things to eight women of the Staunton area who enrolled August 26 in the first class of the new Mary Baldwin program.

Four months later Ms. Alta Nobles says, "I love it", as she pursues her studies in psychology and sociology which will lead to credentials in human services. She is a resident of Waynesboro and a 50-year-old mother of three. Besides experiencing pleasure in her academic work, Ms. Nobles is grateful for the college's cooperation in providing a ramp to the library and a special parking place for the handicapped.

Another enthusiast is Mrs. Jacqueline Reibach, also of Waynesboro, who is studying psychology with the hope of working eventually as a high school guidance counselor. Mrs. Reibach was enthusiastic over the warm support shown by the Mary Baldwin faculty toward the program. "It is wonderful at my age to know so many people are behind you. At age 48 the work involved in obtaining a degree is not a chore—it is exciting and stimulating!"

The campus home for these and other women in the program is the new Women's Center located in the Administration Building just off Upper Back Gallery. The Center houses the offices of the director of the Adult Degree Program, Ms. Dudley Luck, and the director of the Center, Ms. Dorothy Geare, plus a reading room which doubles as a lounge and meeting place. Mature women pursuing degrees within the special program will be using the new facilities along with regular Mary Baldwin students who will find the Center a place to research career opportunities, meet recruiters, and establish job placement files. The possibilities for the Center's growth are great as it began its service to all Mary Baldwin students January 23. In inviting the campus community to drop by, Ms. Geare billed the Center as a source of "hot coffee, tea or cocoa for visitors and lots of ideas and enthusiasm."

Report of Gifts 1976-77

Dear Friends of Mary Baldwin College,

I am happy to present the report of the 1976-77 Fund year at Mary Baldwin College. During these months there has been intensive inquiry, decision making, and a forward movement in all directions. Much has been accomplished. It is extremely gratifying that the table below, which shows total gifts from all sources, represents an increase of $1,160,287 over 1975-76 from 467 more donors.

The purchase of the SMA property, a once in a lifetime opportunity, was made possible by a few extremely generous gifts which are incorporated in these totals. These gifts enabled the college to realize a dream of space, as Mary Baldwin on its present site is defined as "land-intensive." Now we have playing fields, green areas, and room for expansion—a giant step forward. To carry this property for three years, a special campaign was incorporated into the New Dimensions program and alumnae, parents, and local area businesses made significant contributions which successfully earned us a $50,000 challenge grant from the Cabell Foundation.

The New Dimensions program moved ahead in 18 additional areas and Phase I of this campaign has been completed. Our campaign leadership has revised our long-term goals to a total of $10 million by 1980, so efforts will continue to be made to reach this ambitious, but attainable, figure which will ensure the future of Mary Baldwin College.

The Annual Fund total for 1976-77, translated into terms of income from investments, is equal to the income from over $7 million. This is an important "living endowment" whose future growth will continue to have more and more impact on our current operating budget. Alumnae participation is increasing with a 4% increase in alumnae donors represented in these figures.

Hundreds and hundreds of names of alumnae, parents, friends, corporations, and other groups are listed in the report that follows. My heartfelt thanks go to every individual and each group as we acknowledge their gifts in these pages. This support is the vital ingredient in keeping us headed in the direction we have chosen—onward and upward into a new era of influence and expansion of opportunities for young women.

Sincerely,

Virginia L. Lester

President

A little help from some friends . . .

The time and talents of volunteers are vital in securing funds for Mary Baldwin College, whether it be for the Annual Giving Fund or the New Dimensions Program. Totals in the preceding report resulted from many dedicated people asking others to join them in supporting this institution.

Who are these volunteers? Alumnae, parents, current students, faculty and staff members who enthusiastically agreed to serve when called upon. Space is too limited to list the names, but the following table shows the large number of participants involved. The College is grateful for the efforts and proud of the achievements of these "pacesetters". Special thanks to each of . . .

- ... 238 alumnae who were involved in the solicitation for the New Dimensions Program in 18 different localities
- ... 53 alumnae who served as chairmen for their classes in the Annual Giving Fund by writing personal letters to classmates
- ... 70 students who called alumnae during five nights of the Annual Giving telethon
- ... 10 faculty and staff members who gave of their time to call alumnae for gifts to New Dimensions
- ... 5 devoted fathers who composed letters to parents of undergraduates and alumnae

News from the Classes

From the Paris, Texas, News we learn that MARY WELLS of Honey Grove, Texas, has given her homestead to the David Graham Hall Foundation and Trust and Paris Junior College for use as a cultural unit of the foundation. The home will be known as the Mary Wells Cultural Unit of the David Graham Hall Foundation and will be used for non-profit educational, health, recreational, and other cultural projects for the benefit of the residents of Honey Grove and the Red River Valley areas. She will continue to live in the century-old house.

'FROM HAM TO JAM'

Hundreds of alumnae and 2½ years have produced this great new cookbook: From Ham to Jam.

You'll have at your finger tips a handy, spiral-bound book containing over 650 well-tested recipes. Alumnae contributions from all over the country have created an exciting diversity of dishes. Where else could you find in one volume the recipes for Mary Baldwin's own Shepherd's Pie, the unforgettable Train Wreck, or such exotic delights as Jezebel Sauce and Thistle Dip?

From Ham to Jam has it all . . . from metrics to "hints," from appetizers to sweets, or from ham to jam, for that matter. . .
